CEDA was founded by leading international distributors of electronic components. The CEDA was created in partnership with the Chinese government to serve as a link between the government sector and the electronics supply chain. The most significant function of this partnership is to promote closer cooperation between component suppliers and their distributors. CEDA allows members to collaborate to find innovative ways in which to tap into this rich resource while still adhering to government policies, regulations, and standards. The CEDA logo ensures your components are genuine.
